All published under this title. Contains a résumé from 1852 to 1870. Organized Nov. 22, and incorporated Dec. 5, 1852. Opened Jan. 3, 1853, in Court street. Removed to Atlantic street in 1864. In 1871, incorporated under a new name, with power to conduct a hospital. The hospital was opened Feb. 15, 1873, in Cumberland street, and with it the original dispensary in Atlantic street was continued as a branch until 1876, when the property was disposed of, and the enterprise was removed to the hospital, developing more thoroughly the dispensary connected with it.

Taylor (J.) The danger of premature interment proved from many remarkable instances of people who have recovered after being laid out for dead, and of others entombed alive, for want of being properly examined prior to interment. Also a description of the manner the ancient Egyptians, and other nations, preserved and venerated their dead, and a curious account of their sepulchral ever-burning lamps and mausoleums. Likewise the pernicious effects of burying in the body of churches and confined church-yards pointed out, whereby many valuable lives have been lost to the public and their friends. With proper directions, both for preventing such accidents and repairing the misfortunes brought upon the constitution by them. Ginglinger (J.-B.) * Sur la brûlure. 4°. Strasbourg, 1815.

Kentish (E.) An essay on burns, principally on those which happen to workmen in mines from the explosions of inflammable air (or hydrogen gas); containing a view of the opinions of antient and modern authors upon the subject of burns, and a variety of cases conducted upon different principles, from which an attempt is made to rescue this part of the healing art from empiricism and to reduce it to the laws of the animal economy. 8°. London, [1797].

———. A second essay on burns, in which an attempt is made to refute the opinions of Mr. Earle and Sir W. Farquhar, lately advanced, on the supposed benefit of the application of ice in such accidents. With cases and communications confirming the principles and practice brought forward in a former essay. Also proofs, particularly addressed to surgeons of the army and navy, of the utility of the stimulating plan in the treatment of injuries caused by the explosion of gunpowder. 8°. Newcastle-upon-Tyne, 1800.

———. An essay on burns, in two parts; principally on those which happen to workmen in mines from the explosions of carburetted hydrogen gas; containing also a view of the opinions of ancient and modern authors upon the treatment of accidents by fire, and including a variety of cases conducted upon different principles. The whole tending to rescue the healing art from empiricism, and to reduce it to established laws. The first part originally published in 1797, the second part in 1800. 8°. London, 1817.

Libermann (S.) * Essai sur la brûlure. 4°. Strasbourg, 1820.

Macdougall (A.) A probationary essay on burns. 8°. Edinburgh, 1818.
